

Detroit Police Smash Kidnap Ring Whose Crimes Terrorized City

Four Ringleaders Go to Prison for Life While Fifth Awaits Trial With $1,000,000 Bail Asked

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 21.—(NEA)—A ring of kidnapers who operated with cold-blooded daring, mulcted huge sums from wealthy Detroit families and committed at least one murder has been broken up by Detroit police after months of effort—and the "Unholy Alliance" of the motor city's underworld has at last been smashed to fragments.

FIGURES IN RANSOM PLOTS

1—James Fernando, alleged kidnaper of 5-year-old Jackie Thompson, now in jail in default of $1,000,000 bonds as he awaits trial; 2—Matthew Holdreith, Jr., Notre Dame University student whom police found chained to a bed and near starvation; 3—Jackie Thompson and his dad, Henry S. Thompson, who helped police trap kidnaper; 4—Frank Hohler, now in prison, with whose gun David Cass, 23, was killed after being brutally tortured; 5—Police Inspector Bert L. McPherson, leader in breaking up the kidnap ring; 6—Edward Wiles, captured after gun battle and sent up for 35 to 50 years.

There are kidnapers in every big city; but in Detroit, for the first time, kidnaping for ransom became a highly-organized "racket," with a large criminal organization that specialized in that kind of crime.

Three Detroit police inspectors stand out as the heroes of the war on this ring: Inspectors Henry J. Garvin, Robert A. McPherson and Fred W. Frahm. These three officials, directing, respectively, the crime and bomb squad, the blackhand squad and the homicide squad, followed slender clues for months, "pumped" underworld "stool pigeons," or secret police informers—and finally were able to round up one of the most desperate gangs in Detroit's criminal history.

Ransom Is Collected
The organized kidnapers began early last summer, when Fred Gege, an alleged wholesale liquor dealer, was taken from his home in Wyandotte and held prisoner by armed men for six days, being released finally when his relatives paid a ransom for him.

Then David Cass, 23-year-old son of a Detroit real estate dealer, was kidnapped, and a $500 ransom was demanded.

Gerson C. Cass, the abducted youth's father, did not notify police, fearing that it might cost the boy his life; instead he arranged to meet a member of the gang on a street corner and pay him the money.

Stool pigeons, however, tipped off the police, and a squad of officers was lying in wait when Cass met the gangster and handed him a package of bills. The police gave chase and shot the gangster down. He proved to be Joseph (Legs) Laman.

Laman lay desperately ill for weeks, and while he was thus on the verge of death he talked, mentioning names. The officers got all the information they could from him, and then took him into court, convicted him of extortion, as they were unable to prove a graver charge, and sent him to prison. Then they set out to act on the knowledge they had gained from him.

Begeman Held Prisoner
Soon they arrested Henry R. Andrews as one of Begeman's kidnapers. Begeman had been taken to and from his place blindfolded and the window of the room in which he was held prisoner was boarded over. But through a crack in the boards he had seen certain landmarks and by these he identified Andrews' house.

Andrews later was sentenced to 35 to 50 years for abduction. While he lay in jail awaiting trial the "Unholy Alliance," as police called the kidnap ring, fell into more trouble.

Matthew Holdreith, Jr., 23-year-old Notre Dame University senior, and son of a restaurant owner, was kidnapped on Sept. 11. A few days later a roving police radio car, ordered to be on the alert for a stolen taxicab encountered the taxi and engaged in an extended gun battle with two men who were in it. The battle ended with the two gunmen in custody. They identified themselves as Edward Wiles and Frank Hohler—and, after a long grilling, confessed to having helped kidnap Holdreith.

The officers went to the apartment named by the prisoners as the gang's hangout and found Holdreith there, chained to a bed. They released him, and Wiles and Hohler were sentenced to prison terms of 35 to 50 years. Holdreith was near starvation and so swollen from lack of water was his tongue that he could hardly speak.

Meanwhile, however, no trace of young Cass had been found. At last, however, on Oct. 23, the lad's lifeless body was discovered in a thickly wooded area north of Lapeer, Mich. He had been brutally tortured and shot to death months before.

The gang, though crippled, was not yet out of action. While these developments were going forward, Jackie Thompson, five-year-old son of a wealthy real estate dealer, was kidnapped. His father called the police, fearing a duplication of the Cass case, when too great eagerness to arrest the kidnapers had apparently led to the murder of the kidnapers' victim; the officers moved with great care.

Father Recovers Child
After his child had been gone 24 days the elder Thompson arranged to pay a $25,000 ransom for his boy. He met two men in a distant part of the city, handed over $10,000 in cash as part payment and got his child back safe and sound.

The inspectors, meanwhile, had been collecting clues; and once Jackie was safe at home they swooped, capturing a number of suspects, including the man who was regarded as the ringleader—one James Fernando, who is now awaiting trial under the unheard of bond of $1,000,000. Arresting officers claim that Fernando offered them a $5000 cash bribe.

Andrews, arrested in the Begeman case, was sent to prison for a long term in the meantime; and the detectives got evidence tending to prove that Hohler, arrested in the Holdreith kidnaping had been the one who slew young Cass. Experts said Cass had been killed by a bullet fired from Hohler's gun. Police let Hohler's kidnaping sentence stand, however, making no move to try him for murder—because, under the Michigan parole law, a man sent to prison for kidnaping usually has to serve a longer term than a man sent up for murder.

Thus four of the ringleaders of the gang are in prison for terms that amount to life sentences. Fernando and his accomplices are awaiting trial, and another member of the gang has been shot to death in a fight with police.

The "Unholy Alliance" is believed smashed to bits.

MacDonald's Gardener Keeps Rule of Silence

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(A/P)—After forty years' gardening for Prime Ministers of England, Harry Simpson, the official gardener of Number 10 Downing street has raked his last leaf. Forty years ago Simpson went to work in St. James' park but was soon transferred to Downing street where number ten and number eleven, the latter being home of the chancellor of the exchequer, were placed under his care.

He has worked under every premier since Gladstone and has kept faith with the traditional silence that has marked the important little street since its use by ministers. Even on his last day of work he answered an energetic "no" to all questions. "I will not tell you anything," he declared, turning abruptly to rake the premier's lawn for the last time before retirement.

No movie actress, it seems, could be more capable of varying expressions and moods than Gloria Rouzer, better known as "Jone Ord," madcap adventure-daughter of a prominent New York family, who is to be the key witness at the trial of John McGouldrick, second mate of the S. S. Creole, on charges of murdering Jack Kraft, her dashing traveling companion. Here is Gloria with her mother, Mrs. Gloria M. Rouzer of Westchester, N. Y., and in some of her moods—some carefree, others tragic. The three pictures in the circles show her as she viewed Kraft's body in its shallow grave on the river bank at the first autopsy, when she fainted a moment later and when she was being revived by a detective. New Orleans authorities have set McGouldrick's trial for November 25.

Lime Orders Bring Total To 240 Tons

Farmers of County Say Will Have Train Load In.

KATHERINE DALE OWEN and JOHN GILBERT in "THIS GLORIOUS NIGHT"

100 tons more of lime were ordered yesterday and the day before which brings the total amount ordered for Hempstead county up to 240 tons and practically insures the 10 car minimum according to County Agent Lynn Smith. A car or more of lime was ordered at McCaskill as a result of the meeting held there for that purpose Tuesday. The meeting which was to have been held at Blevins for the same purpose Tuesday evening was postponed until 2:30 p. m. Saturday November 23. The indications are that several cars will be placed in that territory.

Because of the fact that the lime is being purchased in such large quantities it is possible to save considerable money by purchasing it cooperatively. The latest price delivered in open cars is $2.00 per ton. Those desiring to order lime and who have not as yet placed their orders are urged to see any of the following men:

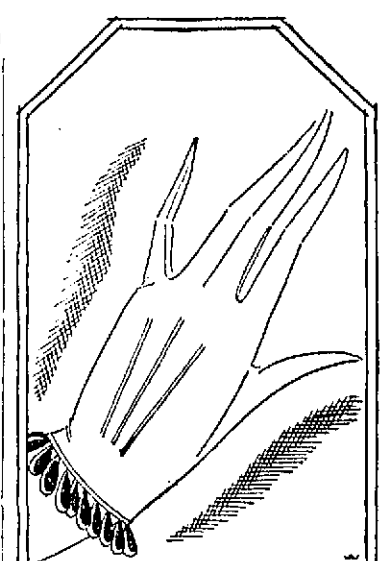

Bert Scott, McCaskill
E. P. Eptor, Bengin
H. M. Stephens, Blevins
W. Homer Pigg, Hope
A. N. Rider, Patmos.

The delivery date for this material has been tentatively set for December 6. Those who want lime, however, must get their orders in now.

County Agent Smith reports that a group of business men at Stamps placed an order yesterday for a car of lime as a result of a short talk which was made on the subject at Rotary Club meeting Wednesday. "This indicates that others are thinking about lime which is one of the safest investments a farmer can make," said Smith after discussing the subject. Lime has a very important place in the dairy program since it is exremely essential in the production of legumes. The hay crops which make for cheap milk production are sweet clover, soy beans, cowpeas, etc., and these crops are greatly boosted by the application of lime. Since there are over 8,000 dairy cows in Hempstead county an attempt will be made to get 8,000 acres of legumes planted next year or an acre of legumes for every cow.

Everyone who buys lime is urged to plant at least one acre in sweet clover; one-half acre alongside this as a check should also be sown in sweet clover but should have no lime. This will serve as a check and will enable us to learn whether the lime really gets results or not.

Effective Management

VERNON THOMPSON voiced the opinion of the community leaders of Hope when he told the Chamber of Commerce banquet audience Tuesday night:

"If there is anybody I am in sympathy with it is the secretary of a Chamber of Commerce in a city of 8,000 operating on a budget of $3,500."

Mr. Thompson had been listening to Homer Pigg read the annual report of Hope Chamber of Commerce for 1929, and the same thought that struck the home folks was impressed upon this visiting speaker a hundredfold.

Secretary Pigg's report was unique in the annals of American Chambers of Commerce. In an hour when a report of past achievements was due, he was able to report achievements—instead of "plans for the future."

The average American Chamber of Commerce is the greatest planning institute on earth, and it takes a lot of hard work on the part of somebody to show real accomplishment among so many plans. When the Hope Chamber of Commerce report was read Tuesday night—with its recital of how the community organized to encourage milk production for the cheese factory, promoted the growing of more feedstuffs on Hempstead county farms, and appealed to the state for the eradication of the cattle tick—the audience followed it in memory through the files of the newspapers over the last year, and knew that this was a report based on fact, not theory; on accomplishment, not merely unrealized plans.

Secretary Pigg, President Anderson and the members of the retiring board are due a vote of thanks for a good job well done.

Criticism of community work, there will always be. But it shouldn't worry those who have given themselves honestly to the task of improving their city, its business and its people.

In Rome, one had to be a Roman. In business, and in community affairs, one has to gauge his city and the tempo in which it moves, to really understand its problems. The criticism that is valuable is the criticism borne of a record of accomplishment.

Hope has moved forward splendidly during 1929, and this is a time to re-assert complete confidence in her community leaders. To keep Hope in the front rank of Arkansas cities during 1930 now would be a good time for our business men to make membership in the Chamber of Commerce 100 per cent strong.

The Cause of Traffic Accidents

THE automobile traffic situation in the United States, costing thousands of lives every year, taking an enormous money toll in accidents and harming business by its never-ceasing congestion, has become one of our major problems.

Every man has his own solution for it, and since the problem is a new one there is no authoritative survey of the question to which we can turn. It occurs to us, however, that George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles for Massachusetts, has some sound ideas on the subject.

Parker, to begin with, has no patience with those who urge that auto traffic can be kept moving rapidly.

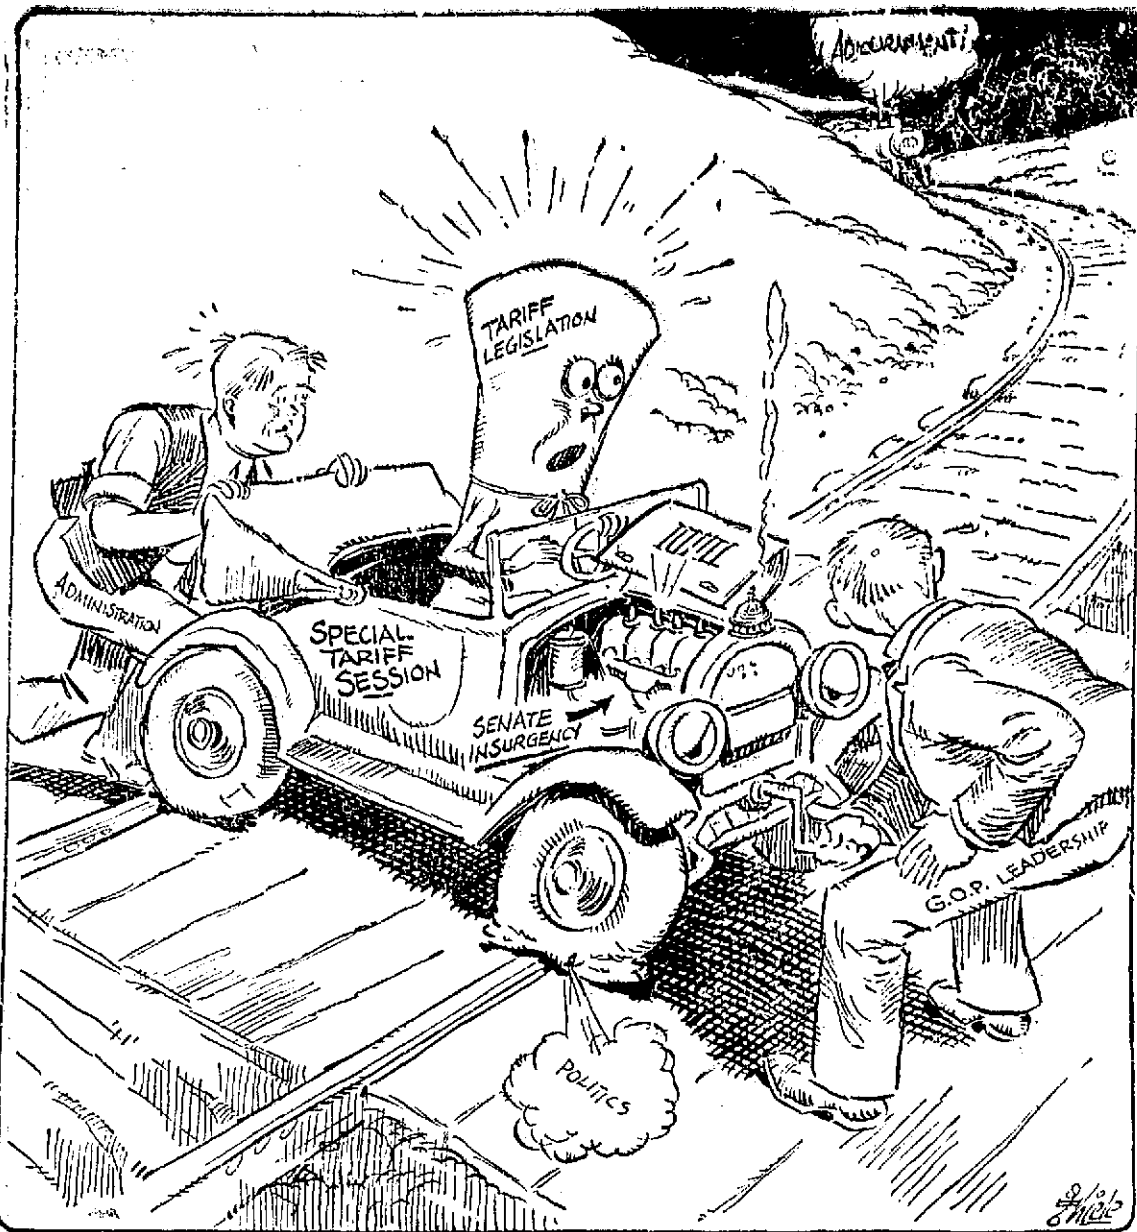

"They cry speed up traffic," he says. "Without question fast driving causes the great bulk of fatalities and injuries. You can't hurt a man going slowly, but you can kill him going fast. There is no excuse for the speed at which you drive today. You are all to selfish."

Then he takes up the question of traffic regulation. "You can't legislate common sense into the minds of the public," he asserts. "When everything is said and done, the problem is one of human beings. It is a question of handling the individual back of the wheel. Make everybody who drives an automobile realize the responsibility that goes with the job."

"You hear considerable about the criminal driver, the hit-and-run driver, the drunken driver. They are not the cause of the majority of our traffic accidents. They cause less than 6 per cent of them."

"The fatal accidents are caused by the people who have never before figured in an accident."

Anxious Moments!

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—"You see more funny looking people in this town than anywhere else in the country except the lobby of a certain big hotel in Indianapolis," said Mr. Graucho Marx after two days in the national capital.

Mr. Zeppo Marx, Mr. Harpo Marx and Mr. Chico Marx nodded in concurrence.

"We are going away from here," continued Mr. Graucho Marx. "because life is slightly more worth living elsewhere. We came to Washington because I wanted to be president so I could refuse to invite people to dinner Zeppo wanted to be vice president. Chico was to have been speaker and Harpo would have been Mrs. Gann. But we have not had a single good meal and our observations in the capital convince us that the country is in such a hell of a mess that there is nothing we can do to save the situation. Anyway, our show is moving on to Pittsburgh."

One gathered that the Four Marx Brothers were somewhat pained because President Hoover had failed to attend the first performance of their epic tragedy, "Animal Crackers."

"Cal came down to see us and laughed so loud he almost stopped the show," recalled Zeppo. "One time his wife cracked him so hard on the back that she nearly knocked him out of the box. A couple of the girls were all set to catch him. I wonder does he still need that cowboy hat and would he sell it cheap for one of our acts."

Your correspondent said that things looked pretty bad in Washington right now and that this was a time to be serious.

"Yes," said Mr. Graucho Marx. "We have a legislative program upon which we expect Congress to act."

Most of all we need a law providing for stock tickers that will go two points up and two points down but no further. I notice one of the investment trusts is giving away a revolver with every three shares of stock and probably that should be made compulsory.

"We hold that Henry Ford started the stock market panic so everyone would have to ride in flivvers. But let's fool him and get out of the retrenchments by Christmas. We are also backing a bill to make the 65-cent tea rooms in Washington serve stiff, crisp lettuce and our slogan is 'Let the potato chips fall where they may.' We are unalterably opposed to the movement for a 13-month calendar which is only a plot of the Book of the Month Club so they can put over another book on us."

"Why do not more actors enter politics and help keep our country pure?" asked your correspondent.

"Why don't more politicians go on the stage?" demanded Graucho Marx. "What's the difference between a ham actor and a ham congressman? The ham actor dresses better. But probably there would be more politicians on the stage if monologues weren't out of style. You can't filibuster in a musical comedy or a melodrama."

It was suggested that he should not walk out on Washington in this time of trial and might be tempted to remain by a good job such as that of prohibition director or perhaps he could be the fellow who reads all the bad books and censors them for the customs service.

The umbrella, we read, is 179 years old. The figure must be wrong, as several people have left older umbrellas than that at our house.

People who draped a little in the recent stock fluctuations can clip the experts' opinion that the "country is basically sound" and give them the first bill collector that calls around.

France was without a government for 12 days while a new premier was being picked out, but nobody made the mistake of sending any of that loan to the United States.

Too much sleep is a vicious habit, says a University of Pittsburgh professor. It certainly is professor, the way folks go about the job with a snarl.

with Barrymore at the directorial helm, is a distinct departure from recent films in which they have participated separately. Gilbert's last pictures having been "Desert Nights" and "A Woman of Affairs" and Barry more having directed "Madame X" and "The Holy Night."

"His Glorious Night," a screen adaptation of the noted Ferenc Molnar stage play, "Olympia," which captivated audiences throughout a London season and a season in New York, is Gilbert under Barrymore's direction for the first time, with the exception of a light skit they made with Norma Shearer for "The Hollywood Revue." It also marks Barrymore's first essay at the direction of a feature length comedy drama, "Madame X" having been grim tragedy and "The Holy Night" a mystery play. Katherine Dale Owen, a New York stage star, noted for her work in "The Whole Town's Talking," plays opposite Gilbert in the leading feminine role.

Senator Moses

Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them; while the sun, or the light, or the moon, or the stars, be not darkened, nor the clouds return after the rain:

In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the strong men shall bow themselves, and the grinders cease because they are few, and those that look out of the windows shall be darkened, and the doors shall be shut in the streets, when the sound of the grinding is low, and he shall rise up at the voice of the bird, and all the daughters of music shall be brought low:

Also when they shall be afraid of that which is high, and fears shall be in the way, and the almond tree shall flourish, and the grasshopper shall be a burden, and desire shall fail: because man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets; or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern:

Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was; and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it.—Ecclesiastes 12, quoting verses 1-7.

News of Other Days

From the Files of the Star

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Marie Dale and Company presented "Infelice" at the opera house last night.

Will Bridewell was over from Ashdown, and spent Sunday with home-folks.

R. M. Patterson made a business trip to Texarkana Monday.

Dr. Stuart, of Ashdown, spent yesterday in Hope, and was accompanied home this morning by his daughter, Mrs. P. A. McRae, and little grand daughter, Miss Del McRae, who will spend Thanksgiving with him.

TEN YEARS AGO

Talbot Feild attended the meeting of the Shriners, at El Amin temple, Little Rock, this week, and reports a large bunch of novices, all of whom were royally entertained by the old members of the order.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Routon, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. Ed McCorkle went to El Dorado yesterday.

Thomas Watson, who has been visiting his parents, Marshall and Mrs. Mode Watson, of this city, for the past ten days, returned to his duties in the U. S. Navy, at Gulfport, Miss, Sunday.

Gus Rowland, formerly of this city, but who for the last several years has been one of the most successful business men of Idabel, Okla., was shaking hands with his old friends here this week.

Miss Opal Hayes, accompanied by Miss Elyce Farrar, of Memphis, who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. John P. Cox, spent Wednesday in Prescott, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Davis.

Mrs. W. C. Shelton and little son, William Culver, left Thursday afternoon for a week's visit with her parents, Judge and Mrs. W. O. Feazel at Nashville.

A party composed of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Richards, Mrs. W. W. Duckett and Mr. Barr, spent Wednesday peacocking on Red river.

Elks Plan "German Hop" Thanksgiving Morning

Talbot Feild, secretary of local lodge B. P. O. Elks, announces Jimmy Pryor's orchestra for a German dance at the hall here beginning at 12:01 Thanksgiving Day and lasting until dawn.

The home will be open all evening before the dance and the rest and recreation rooms will be entirely at the disposal of those caring to use them until the dance starts. A silver loving cup, presented by the Elks, will be awarded the best dancing couple on the floor during the evening.

A. & M. Grads Stay With Farm, Report

Majority of Graduates of Magnolia School Apply Practical Education.

MAGNOLIA, Ark., Nov. 21.—(Spec-ial)—Out of every 100 boys who have graduated from the Arkansas Agricultural College at Magnolia 32 are now engaged in farming according to the reports of the student research department. In addition 16 out of every 100 are engaged in teaching.

agriculture or acting as county dem-onstration agents.

Of the girls who have graduated from the institutions 55 out of every 100 are now married and are engaged in home making for their families. Of each 100 girls who have graduated 35 are now teaching.

Among the boys the teaching pro-fession claims 12 out of every 100 graduates. 10 are students in other institutions of higher education, 9 are engaged in clerical work, 6 are salesmen, 2 are physicians, 2 are soldiers and 4 are dead.

Many of the graduates who are now farming did not take the agricultural course while they were in college and some of them never lived on a farm before attending college.

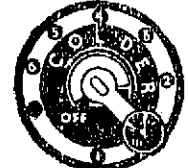

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not re-lieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Marster Is Out

Al Marsters is out of the game with something broken in his back. Without him the Dartmouth team, excellent though it is, remains about as colorful as an empty tomato can. Dartmouth will go out there and cheer somebody else while Al remains in bed. For a while the Dartmouth supporters will think of Al's injury as just too bad. Then it will be forgotten. Marsters will remain but a symbol.

It was thus with Lassman, also singularly enough named Al. Last year, after playing his way to All-American honors, Lassman was so severely injured that his side was paralyzed and his mind for a time ceased to function. There was quite a lot of tumult and shouting about it for a while. Eventually the captains and the kings departed and Al Lassman took a job helping Chick Meehan coach the Collet squad.

Marsters sustained his injury while going about one of the ordinary jobs in a football game, running interference. On a reverse play he passed the ball to another Dartmouth back and stepped out himself to knock somebody for a goal. Head-on he smacked into a charging Yale tackler. Down he went, and though he got up and continued for a time, it soon became plain to his mates that he could not carry on. So he went to the sidelines—for good.

Bush and Shires
Donie Bush dropped in to see his new boss, Mr. Comiskey, the other day and walked down the street without having to dodge any pineapples or sustaining any black eyes at the hands of the effervescent Art Shires. Now that Shires has gone in for boxing in a big way, he may forego busting his managers, as boxers generally show a distaste for mauling or being mauled free of charge. They are not like the grid hero in that respect.

Mr. Shires probably knows that he is all through cracking down on his manager—for at least the duration of Bush's contract to guide the Sox. If he doesn't know it, that great fact is about to burst in on him, for Bush said in Chicago he "planned to have a little talk with Shires." The new manager says he expects Art to play ball at first base and confine his busting proclivities to the batter's box. Mr. Bush can talk very well and Mr. Shires will enjoy listening to him. Bush is angling around for an out-

Aggies Battle for Goat Ownership

Losing Team To Present Angora To Winners After Game.

MAGNOLIA, Ark., Nov. 21.—(Special)—When the Magnolia Mulieriders and the Monticello Boll Weevils meet on Thanksgiving day at Magnolia they will be trying to get each others goat in fact. A real live Angora goat will be the prize for which they will battle the winners having possession of the animal for a period of one year. Frank Horsefall, president of the Arkansas A. & M. College of Monticello recently wrote to C. A. Overstreet, president of the Magnolia institution suggesting that the athletic associations of the two college jointly purchase a pure bred Angora goat as a prize and the Magnolia president immediately accepted the proposition. In honor of their victory last year over the Magnolia Aggies the Boll Weevils will be given the distinction of choosing and purchasing the goat. He will accompany the student body of the Arkansas A. & M. to Magnolia on Turkey Day and will be presented to the winners after the game by the captain of the losing team.

The Old Spirit

Down in Boston the other day, Tommy Sudbey joined in a group getting up an impromptu football game on Fletcher School playground. After he had played a few minutes he dove into the line, bodies piled on top of him and he was taken out with a twisted leg. An ambulance took him to a hospital. The doctors found he had a broken leg—and an artificial arm.

Midnight Match Seeker Meets Benny Leonard

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—(AP)—A bunch of the boys were whooping it up in a downtown hotel the other night, celebrating a football victory. Somebody needed a match and two collegians went out to get it. They surveyed the long hall of the hotel. The hour was late. There was no sound, except in the room from which the two had come.

"Let's try this one," one of the pair gleefully suggested. They banged on the door. Aroused from his sleep the male occupant showed his displeasure.

There was an argument. Suddenly a fist shot out and one of the intruders recoiled.

Why Leave the Farm, Boys?

Why boys leave the farm is a puzzling question when one considers Lucille Newell, above, 17-year-old farmerette of Wakefield, Kan., winner of a state-wide contest for beauty and brains among 4-H clubs of Kansas. She can cook and sew and is an expert judge of grain crops—and is she pretty? Well, we leave that

Arkansan Is 'Star Farmer' of Nation

Carlton Patton, Wooster, Leads All 'Future Farmers' of America.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 2.—(AP)—An 18-year-old youth from the hills of Arkansas, Carlton Patton of near Wooster, Faulkner county, who mixes education with agriculture, Tuesday night was crowned the "Star Farmer of America," and given a prize of $1,000.

The ceremony took place in the arena of the American Royal Livestock

Somebody called an attendant. "Lucky you didn't get anything worse," he remarked, of all the rooms in the hotel, you had to pick the one occupied by Benny Leonard."

show. Patton, a modest, drawing lad, was chosen from 26 previously selected members of the "Future Farmers of America," an organization of vocational agriculture students functioning in 20 states. The 26 youths were named as outstanding members of the club from their respective sections.

Six other boys, named the "star" farmers of their states, were given prizes of $100 each. They included Boyd Waite, Winfield, Kan.; Oscar Schieni, Salisbury, Mo.; Ronald Ford, Helena, Okla.; Bryce Tucker, Denison, Ia.; Alvin Reimer, Beatrice, Neb., and Don Godsey Yuma, Col.

The $1,000 prize was given by the Weekly Kansas City Star.

Sam H. Thompson, Chicago, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; C. E. Huff, Salina, Kan., president of the National Farmers' Union and L. T. Tabor, Columbus, O., president of the National Grange, named the 26 youths from whom the winners were selected.

Patton the national champion, has earned more than $2,500 from farm operations in the last three years. He has re-invested more than $1,700 in farm holdings.

This year he leased his father's 80-acre farm with an option to buy it. In 1927, he put in 823 hours of farm labor. In 1928 his labors totaled 1,559 hours, and in 1929 they totaled 1,741 hours.

His grades during four years of high school averaged "A." He was winner of the American athletic scholarship in 1928, and at present is a freshman in the Arkansas State Teachers College at Conway.

J. C. Swift, president of the American Royal Livestock Show, read an address prepared by Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, who was unable to be present. The secretary declared the possibilities of the "Future Farmers" were immeasurable.

"The 'pick-up' method of learning to farm goes hand-in-hand with inefficiency," he said. "The complex conditions under which farming now is conducted requires special training, good practices and the utilization of the discoveries of science and modern machinery."

After the naval cut and the tax cut a little cut in the price of diamonds and theatre tickets would help.

Dry Law Is Failure In Opinion of Dr. Fletcher, Methodist Divine

Asserts Morality and Sobriety Cannot Be Legislated
Into the Nation and Urges That "We Try God's Power for A While."

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 21.—formerly of Little Rock, in his sermon Dr. Philip Cone Fletcher, Methodist minister, asserted that prohibition is a failure, and that the only way to make the nation sober is to try God's power for a while. His sermon was held at the Methodist church here, Sunday night. His subject was "Can the United States Be Made a Sober Nation?"

while," said Dr. Philip Cone Fletcher, Methodist minister, in his sermon Sunday night. His subject was "Can the United States Be Made a Sober Nation?"

Emphasizing his idea that legislation does not create enforcement, Dr. Fletcher declared that the surest way to break the backbone of prohibition would be to enact Senator Morris Sheppard's proposed bill to penalize buyers of liquor.

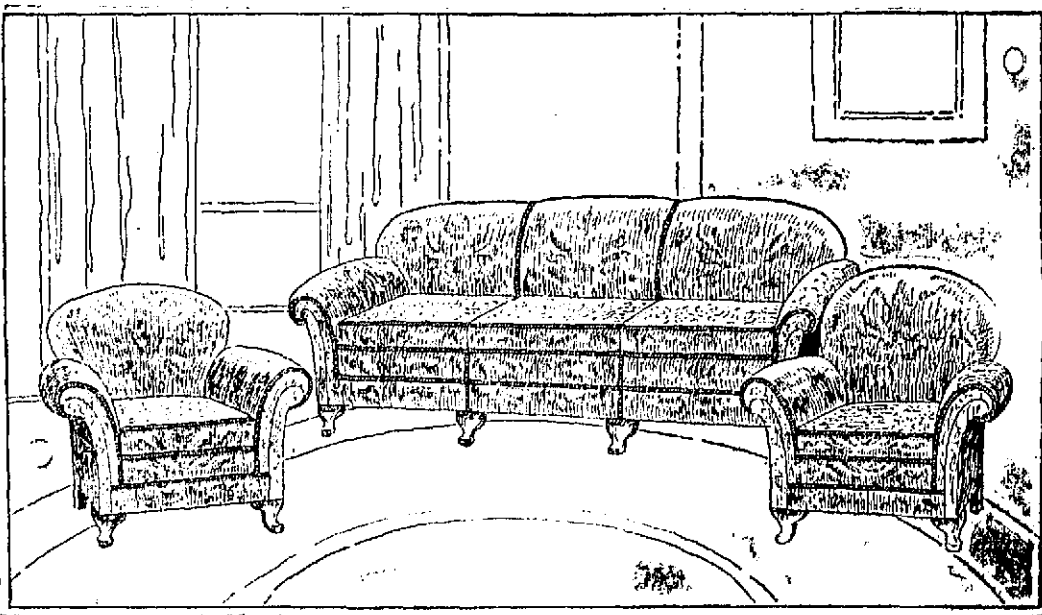

The pastor said: "Christ did not come to condemn but to emancipate. He did not come to hate but to love. He did not come to hurt but to help. He did not come to discourage but to hearten. He did not come to damn but to save. He did not come to imprison but to release. As a nation and as a church we cannot redeem men by means of prison bars and felons' stripes."

"True reformation must come from within. Legal prohibition cannot take the place of gospel repentance. We cannot make a sober nation by means of brutality. Law enforcement is essential as it may be, cannot take the place of education in the homes and the schools. Some people are inclined to offer Jesus Christ as a chief of police instead of a Saviour. The church must not assume the role of a high sheriff. She is our spiritual mother, and the minister is a shepherd of the flock of God. No one who is deaf and blind and dumb and insane can intimate to us that at present we have a sober nation. According to the testimony of avowed prohibition advocates we have some startling facts to wit: Over 125,000,000 gallons of wine are manufactured annually; not over 20,000,000 of our population are good prohibitionists; New York City has 32,000 speakeasies; New York City alone gives $75,000,000 a year to 'bribe' those who are paid to enforce prohibition; in Washington city there are over 4,000 persons engaged in the traffic of liquor; this year no less than 1,600,000 gallons of whiskey and wine have been consumed in the capital city; Capitol Hill is the wettest place in Washington; it will take $300,000,000 a year to enforce prohibition; billions of dollars are back of the bootleggers; last year, according to President Hoover, America had 12,000 murders; our penitentiaries are packed to suffocation; prohibition has become a political football and springboard. Can the United States be a sober nation? Sobriety is God's ideal and the ideal of the 18th amendment. We have, after trying prohibition for 9 years, come to where we must face facts and honestly and sincerely grapple with them. What every worthy man and woman desires is a sober nation. It will take more than blind fanaticism to bring this about. God's people must be united, and no longer wrangle over methods."

"Those who shout dry and live wet are not the sort of citizens that will make prohibition popular."

After the government engineers have stabilized the levels of the Great Lakes, they might tackle the stock market. Too many ups and downs in its water levels.

VALUE FIRST STORES

"The Vagabond King" To Play At Saenger Theatre November 30

The management of the Saenger theatre takes especial pride in announcing the forthcoming engagement of "The Vagabond King" on Saturday night Nov. 30, which has been styled by the critics the world over as perhaps the most thrilling operetta ever produced.

The huge cast has been selected from the New York, Chicago and Boston companies, and is said to be one of the finest that has yet interpreted this brilliant musical play. The original scenic production is being brought intact, and all of the effects and costumes, exactly as presented at the Casino theatre, New York, The Great Northern, Chicago, and at the Winter Garden theatre, London.

The original orchestra from the Casino theatre is being brought in, much as the musical score is one of the most difficult yet written for an operetta. The orchestra is under the direction of John Lawrence, who has conducted "The Vagabond King" for the past two seasons. The leading role of Francois Villon, the vagabond poet, and King for a day, is played by Paul Genst, rated as one of the best singers and actors who have been seen in this great role.

John E. Miller of "What Price Glory" fame, is seen as King Louis XI a part once played by the late Henry Irving, and one of that actor's favorites.

Other roles. All other roles are equally well cast, and the entire singing and dancing ensemble has been carefully selected from the recent three companies, only the finest voices from these casts having been chosen. "The Vagabond King" is one of those spectacular musical plays which, unhappily, comes only once in a blue moon, and, being brought here with such a brilliant cast, and being presented in so complete a manner, it is certain that local play goers will have a treat of the rarest kind. Mail orders will be filled in the order of their receipt. Be sure to make your reservations early.

Reversible Propeller Acts as Brake

This newly perfected reversible airplane propeller, displayed for the first time at the Western Aircraft Exposition at Los Angeles, introduces many new possibilities to flying, particularly in combat maneuvers. By changing the pitch of the blades in flight, an aerial brake is brought into effect and by reversing the blades the machine may taxi backward on the ground. The propeller can also give the plane a quicker takeoff and faster climbing and cruising speed. Note the chain drive pitch controller, adjusted from the cockpit, which is being examined by A. K. McLeod, one of the owners.

One of the greatest of these was Georgius Agricola." One of these rare volumes is the property of Maj. R. B. Hope Concern Has Texarkana Store

Local Firm Expands Business and Opens Branch In State Line City.

Slightly more than a year ago the Southern Arkansas Implement Co., under management of W. H. Lindsey, opened its doors for business on South Walnut street in this city, and responding words in the vocabulary is one of the prized volumes in Major Stanford's library.

in the period of time elapsing since that date has ranked, with two exceptions, as the leading International agency in the state. The local firm has purchased the International agency in the Texarkana district from John S. Offenhausen, former agent, bought a site and are constructing suitable buildings for their agency in the Texas-Arkansas city. Until their new building is completed they will occupy the Offenhausen quarters. Headquarters for the concern will be retained in Hope, because of its more central location.

"Bill" Lindsey, who manages this concern and peddles Farm-A-alls and International trucks and everything else International Harvester Company builds, has worked like a Trojan for the success he has won. Clean, like a live wire in every sense of the word, he has worn out plenty of shoes in putting his concern on the trade map in this territory and his taking on new territory demonstrates his belief in his wares and in his ability to dispose of them. Hope's business life can always make room and extend a welcome to another "Bill" Lindsey.

After December 1, all work will be strictly cash except to merchants.

HARDWARE FOR HARD WEAR

Volume By President Hoover and Wife Added To List of Rare Books

One of Original Volumes Is Property of Major R. B. Stanford, District Highway Engineer, Now A Resident of Hope.

President Hoover enjoys a new distinction. He is listed in the catalogues of the collectors and distributors of rare books. When engaged in London 20 years ago with a British mining and engineering firm, Herbert Clark Hoover and his wife, Lou Henry Hoover, devoted their spare hours to translating a sixteenth century Latin work, by Georgius Agricola, dealing with the history of practice of mining. The task required five years and the first edition, richly illustrated with wood cuts depicting development of the art from its earliest stages, sold for about $10. Today copies of the first edition are quoted at $250, with no sellers. A copy recently obtained by Wesleyan University at Miami, Ohio, and autographed by the President is valued at $500 but is not for sale.

The ornate title page of the translation describes "De Re Metallica" as an encyclopaedia "upon the development of mining methods, metallurgical processes, geology, mineralogy and mining law from the earliest times to the sixteenth century."

"A Labor of Love" "As this book could be but a labor of love," the translators explain in their preface, "it had to find the moments for its execution in night hours, week-ends and holidays, in all extending over a period of five years."

The motive which inspired the work is disclosed in another passage of the preface. "We do not offer De Re Metallica as a work of 'practical' value." "The methods and processes have long since been superseded; yet surely such a milestone on the road of development of one of the most basic of human industrial activities is more worthy of preservation than the thousands of volumes devoted to records of human destruction—if the work serves to strengthen the traditions of one of the most important and least recognized of the world's professions we shall be amply repaid."

Another passage of the preface suggests the difficulties encountered in translation. "The task has been doubly difficult in this work because, in using Latin, the author availed himself of a medium which had ceased to expand a thousand years before his subject had in many respects come in being; in consequence he was in difficulties with a large number of ideas for which there were no corresponding words in the vocabulary. At his command, and instead of adopting into the text his native German terms, he coined several hundred Latin expressions to answer his needs. It is upon this rock that most former attempts at translation have been wrecked. Except for a very small number, we believe we have been able to discover the intended meaning of such expressions from a study of the context, assisted by a very complete glossary prepared by the author himself, and by an exhaustive investigation into the literature of these subjects during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries."

A 640-page book Although the book comprises 640 pages, printed on sheets 7 by 13 inches, the translators explain that "the entire work has been re-written three times since the original, and some parts more often." Further, the "printer's proof has been thrice revised."

Agriola's work was first published the year after his death, 1555. During 180 years it was not superseded as the text-book and guide to miners and metallurgists, for, as the Hoover preface explains, "until Schuler's great work on metallurgy in 1733 it had no equal."

Georgius Agricola was born at Glauchau, in Saxony, on March 24, 1494. Columbus had recently returned to Spain with his great findings of a new route to India. Erasmus was the friend and mentor of the young Saxon peasant, of whose antecedents nothing is known.

Educated at the University of Leipsic, he taught Latin and Greek for a time, published a Latin grammar and then studied philosophy and natural sciences at Bologna, Venice and Padua. In 1527 he was chosen town physician at Joachimsthal, Bohemia, in the center of the richest metal mining district of Central Europe. Here he began De Re Metallica, which was not to be published for 25 years. Between times, however, he found time to publish a book advocating a league of European powers to exterminate the Turks, several volumes of mining lore and work devoted to the habits and modes of life of animals which live underground. This latter work, however, the Hoover biographical sketch suggests, "is not a very effective basis for either geologic or zoologic classification."

The Avenging Parrot

© 1929 by NEA Service, Inc.

By Anne Austin, author of 'The Black Pigeon', 'Rival Wives', etc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Mrs. Emma Hogarth, said to keep a hoard of money in her room on the second floor of Mrs. Rhodes' boarding house, is strangled to death. Bonnie Dundee, "cub" detective, assists Lieut. Strawn, attaches significance to the utterance "Pad Penny" made by Cap'n. Mrs. Hogarth's parrot.

Suspicion falls on Emil Sevier, former boarder whom Mrs. Hogarth has accused of trying to rob her and who leaves town hurriedly. Strawn quizzes Henry Doud, new boarder, out of work, who insists he was asleep. Cora Barker, theater pianist, tells of her appointment with Bert Magnus, another boarder, who is an amateur scenario writer, and of his failure to appear. She returns to the house to hear him typing in his room at 12:10. She frantically denies being Sevier's accomplice.

Norma Paige, latest heiress under Mrs. Hogarth's will, admits calling on her late that night and of arousing her anger by confessing her engagement to Walter Styles. Styles corroborates Norma's admission she came to his room to tell him of the interview and also confesses his anger with Mrs. Hogarth.

Magnus says he typed until 12:15. Daisy Shepherd, absent at the time of the murder, says she was in the kitchen robbing the ice box. The next morning Dundee makes a speech asking the boarders to remain. All agree but Daisy.

Dundee learns from Mrs. Rhodes of the mysterious manner in which Mrs.

"I'll lay you two bets: first, that Sally was Mrs. Hogarth's daughter, and, second, that the 'bad penny' turned up."

Hogarth received and sent mail, making the postman her only confidant. When Dundee discovers a piece of skin in the parrot's cage, he recalls Cora's bandaged hand and her explanation that she burned it. In the drapings in Cora's room, he finds pellets of paper—a missing page from the victim's diary. Strawn calls Cora in for further questioning and tells her he knows she was in the murder room after 12. She breaks down and confesses of being in the room but swears the woman was already dead. She says she tore out the page because it referred to an alleged affair between her and Sevier. Strawn arrests her as a material witness against Sevier, who is missing. A long-distance call for Daisy the night of the murder adds suspicion. All boarders agree to remain on but Daisy, who packs and leaves. Dundee pays Styles a visit and finds him washing socks and a pair of gloves.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVI

"Good morning, sir," Dundee greeted the little old postman deferentially. "You've probably heard that Mrs.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

and 9 of that morning. The tenant told of hearing a man's voice call out, 'Special delivery for Miss Graves,' but paid no attention. Did not even open his door to look out; no reason why he should spy on his neighbor, of course.

"When he went out for breakfast about 10 minutes later, he says, he heard and saw no one. As a matter of fact, the murderer could not have picked a better time to enter and escape unobserved. New York is still asleep at 9 o'clock on Sunday. The Graves girl—police placed her age at 28—was dressed in nightgown and kimono. Evidently she had risen from bed to answer the doorbell, rung by the fake special delivery postman. Postoffice records showed no such letter had been received for her."

"Who discovered the crime?" Strawn asked.

"Miss Graves' first assistant designer at the hat shop. It seems that Sally had asked her friend—using the word in a loose sense, since she did not make a real friend of anyone, apparently—to have Sunday breakfast with her at 11 o'clock. The two girls were going to make new summer hats for themselves—a sort of business holiday—and the young assistant brought some of the materials with her. When she could not arouse Miss Graves she became alarmed, and asked the janitor to open the door with his pass key. The last I read of the case the poor thing was still lying in the morgue, waiting to be claimed by some close friend or relative. And the police were no nearer a solution than they had been one hour after the discovery of the body."

"I wonder why Mrs. Hogarth didn't happen to read of it in the local papers?" Strawn mused questioning-ly. "Wait a minute! We've got a file of the three local newspapers. I'll look it up."

He returned very shortly. "No wonder she didn't see it. June 3 was the day that passenger plane crashed at our local airport, killing 11 people. Everything else was crowded out of the paper that day, and since they hadn't printed the lead story, the papers here practically ignored it. An obscure New York murder doesn't mean a whole lot in Hamilton, you know . . . Well, boy."

"Well!" Dundee smiled, but without triumph. "D. turned up, didn't he? I wonder what he was looking for. Evidently he failed to find it in his wife's apartment in New York, found her mother's address instead, and came on here to look further. My God! No wonder Mrs. Hogarth 'broaded' that he would 'turn up'!"

"Aren't you jumping to conclusions?" Strawn frowned. "In the first place, you don't know that Sally Graves was Mrs. Hogarth's daughter; in the second, you have absolutely no

City Bakery the past few days has evidence of a connection between the two murders.

"Good Lord!" Bonnie Dundee ejaculated in honest amazement. "I'll lay you two bets: first, that Sally was Mrs. Hogarth's daughter, and second that the 'bad penny' turned up! Let's have a look at that trunk of hers. I'll lay you a third wager that we find something in it on which to win at least one of my bets!" (To be continued) been a busy place, workmen installing new machinery in their enlarged quarters, showcases and other fixtures being placed and the entire sales room being neatly decorated.

In the list of equipment added, Mrs. Smith, one of the owners, advised that they have secured the most modern and that the place will compare favorably with those even in the larger cities, save in size.

Practically all machinery is electrically operated and the place, under the supervision of Mrs. Jones, is spotlessly clean from one end to the other. And to add savor to it all, there's a smiling, cheerful courtesy on the part of the shop's personnel while leaves you feeling glad you went in, even if only on a tour of inspection.
